Background

In addition to returning absentee or mail ballots through the postal service, many states offer voters the option of returning their ballot to a secure drop box provided by election authorities. States take a variety of policy approaches to ballot drop boxes, with some states requiring or allowing they be broadly available statewide, while other states restrict or even ban the option. MAP defines “broadly available” drop boxes as those available 24 hours per day, not required to be staffed, and not limited in number.

Scoring

- Drop boxes required statewide and broadly available, 1 point
- Drop boxes allowed statewide and broadly available, ½ pt
- State has no applicable law or policy and drop boxes are not used, 0 points
- State allows drop boxes but restricts their availability, -1/2 pt
- State bans drop boxes, -½ point
